

Bitburg-Prüm District Shows Picturesque Uplands

The large but sparsely populated Bitburg-Prüm District extends from the northernmost point of the Rhineland-Palatinate. It has borders with both Belgium and Luxembourg as well as neighboring North Rhine-Westphalia. With two great NaturParks on the northern and western sides and the high elevations of the Eifel mountains, this region is naturally peaceful.

Many rivers start their journeys from these high mountains — especially in the spring as these mountains hold their snow through the winter — making for the most amazing landscapes.

Prüm has some great history including the great Catholic Benedictine Abbey where Charlemagne's eldest son — Pippin the Hunchback (apparently) — spent most of his life. This monastery is also supposed to be the location of the sandals of Christ.

Local celebrations in the Bitburg-Prüm District include many festivals and celebrations, but also competitions. In the summer, the eight week long activities include trunk sawing and beer jug lifting!

Some things just need to be seen to be believed... ;-)
