

Eislingen Is Full of History, Culture, And Archeological Wonder

Eislingen (Fils) is a town of vast historical importance. Several archaic churches, which have roots in times-gone-by, are found scattered throughout the dazzling area.

St.-Anna-Kapelle, St.-Markus-Kirche, and Christuskirche, are all noteworthy for their old-fashioned architecture as well as their individual histories. Dorfkirche St. Jakob is a fine example of old Gothic architecture, which is what many people want to see when they visit pastoral European towns and villages.

Art lovers will want to take meandering strolls through the antiquated village to find Kreiselkunst, or gyroscope art, which can be viewed throughout the city.

Another highly notable attraction, though not art related, is that of the Fischsaurier, or Ichthyosaur — a reproduction that inhabits the town, looming down from eons ago. The creature lived during the Mesozoic, nearly 200 million years ago! Children and adults alike can wonder at the prehistoric creature, its steely countenance ruminating in your memory.

Football, or soccer, a popular sport in Europe, can be had in Eislingen. Visit the VfB Football School at Oak Creek Sportzentrum and cheer on a team during a thrilling match.

Music is also important to this town; take in a theatrical or musical show at the Filsterarassen open-air stage for pleasant atmosphere and exciting sounds. Other music venues can also be found in the city, so your stay in Eislingen will be full of harmony.

With a wide variety of cultural and touristy offerings, the city will make a great stop. Whether you are a sports fan, architecture enthusiast, or art buff, you will find pleasure in what the city has on offer. Fill your stay with trips to the old, storied churches, take in a game, or see ancient sea creatures while you stay in this antique-like location.
