

Schramberg -- Land Of Carnivals, Tub-Rafting, And Clockworks

Schramberg is also known as the “Town of Five Valleys” and this should give you a more or less definite idea of its immense natural beauty. On top of this is a cultural scene that is set to clockwork precision, which, by the way, the land is quite famous for.

Schramberg, while between the two bigger cities Freiburg and Stuttgart, has considerable charms and attractions of its own.

The picturesque town comes alive with festivities such as the Swabian-Alemannic Carnival and the Da-Bach-na-Fahrt raft race, to mention a couple. Suffice it to say, the cultural scene here is so well-known for its vibrancy that thousands travel to Schramberg to participate in the bonhomie all year long.
